What a Difference a Year Makes

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

One year ago, I was writing this message just after the earthshaking events of Sept. 11, and now, writing twelve months later, I think it's safe to say that no one could have predicted the events of the past year. In addition to the ongoing war on terrorism, the country has weathered a downturn in the economy and record slides in the financial markets.

Proudly, Juniata has also weathered difficult challenges and in many cases exceeded its goals for making the College one of the top institutions in the country. Many of these goals were attained with the help of one of the finest volunteer groups in the nation—our alumni, families and friends.

As you will read in the report's opening stories, our volunteer programs are models for other institutions. One of our strengths is our alumni participation, particularly in creating or offering internships. For example, Ronald Blanck '63, president of the University of North Texas medical school, hosted Kathryn Gleason '03 as an intern, and Dave Brown '77, hosted two IT students—Steve Brink '03 and Dave Wise '03—at Sarasota Memorial Hospital in Florida this summer. In the article "Connectivity" (see page 8), read about other alumni active in our internship programs. Also in that article, discover how our all-volunteer class fund agents helped Juniata have one of its best fund-raising years ever, bringing in $10,093,000, just about $7,400 below the College's record-breaking year in 2000. In a year in which our expectations of personal and economic security were turned topsy-turvy, this achievement is a testament to the dedication of our volunteers, staff and most importantly our loyal donors.

Our enrollment has topped our expectations for the third straight year, rising to 1,345, including 401 new students this year, which in turn exceeded our goal of 375 incoming students. In addition to the superb work of the Juniata admissions office and the financial aid office, these statistics also reflect the work of two of Juniata's top volunteer programs: the Juniata Admissions Ambassadors and the Parent-Alumni Career Team (PACT). Both these programs are driven by dedicated, enthusiastic alumni who effortlessly espouse the advantages of attending the College to prospective students.

Other volunteer programs, such as the Alumni Council and PACT mentor programs, ensure that our students are supported and challenged by opportunities during their stay here. The success of these efforts is evident in Juniata's near record 89 percent retention rate for the 2001-2002 freshman class. Our success is traceable to a triumvirate of talented students, dedicated faculty and staff and high-achieving alumni willing to give Juniata the benefit of their experience and a few volunteer hours every year.

The amazing achievements of the past year are being noticed on a national scale as well. Juniata has been endorsed by seven prestigious college assessment experts. U.S. News & World Report rated us in top 114 liberal arts colleges. The College's programs and advantages were listed in Loren Pope's Colleges That Change Lives, The Princeton Review: The Best 345 Colleges, Kaplan Publishing's Unofficial Insider's Guide to the 320 Most Interesting Colleges, Miriam Weinstein's Making a Difference College Guide: Outstanding Colleges To Help You Make a Better World, and Barron's Best Buys in College Education. The 2000 National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE) singled out Juniata College for praise for its writing-intensive curriculum and for its supportive campus environment. Juniata is one of only two institutions included in all of these diverse listings of outstanding colleges and universities.

The support the College has received in a year of upheaval might just be this year's greatest achievement. The support of our Board of Trustees, our alumni volunteers and our excellent students made 2001-2002 a true triumph. I would like to extend our thanks on behalf of the College to all those who helped Juniata remain an uncommon institution.

Warm regards,

Thomas R. Kepple Jr.

The William J. von Liebig Center for Science will return Juniata academics to the heart of its historic campus while ensuring that the College will continue to provide a superb science education well into the 21st century by providing not only first-rate laboratory and classroom facilities, but also a warm collaborative atmosphere between students and faculty. Recognizing generous donors and selfless volunteers, we would like to thank all our friends in helping to keep the College on the cutting edge of education.

LEADERS TRAINING LEADERS

College's Volunteers Build Can-Do Reputation

Americans love to volunteer, whether the opportunity comes at a PTA meeting or at work, and that spirit of helpfulness helps explain the success of Juniata, where the College's alumni keep their alma mater strong and competitive by working as advisers, counselors, recruiters and in any other job where help is needed.

Such a vibrant can-do attitude certainly was in evidence at the College's second Volunteer Leadership Training Conference (VLTC), held Aug. 2-4 at the College. Working through one of the hottest weekends of the summer, 75 volunteer leaders, including 29 first-time attendees, came to workshops where volunteer groups mapped out strategic plans and objectives for each of the College's volunteer areas.

"The first conference in 2001 really was designed to introduce participants to Juniata's strategy about volunteers," explains Michelle Corby, director of alumni relations. "This year, the volunteers were able to strengthen the structure of all the groups while the energy was more focused on establishing objectives."

"If you convince just 10 percent of alumni to give of their time you will have a powerful voluntary mechanism that helps the entire organization," says Karen Heart '88, associate director of clinical operations at Wyeth Pharmaceuticals and a member of the VLTC steering committee. "Ten percent of our alumni means 1,100 people who have a passion for Juniata can convince students or other people how the College made us who we are today."

The conference was run entirely by volunteers. It opened its workday with workshops on team building and effective communication, both taught by alumni volunteers, Pat Shope '93 and Nathan Wagoner '80. Next on the agenda was a panel discussion with College administrators, Working together at this year's Volunteer Leadership Training Conference are: Michael Slough '75, Rich Paulhamus '70 and Larry Hoover '76. The three were discussing plans to form a cross-country alumni affinity group.

including President Tom Kepple, Jim Lakso, provost, Bill Alexander '66, vice president for finance and operations, and John Hille, vice president for advancement. In the afternoon, volunteers joined workshops to plan objectives for one of 12 Affinity Groups, the Parent-Alumni Career Team (PACT), Regional Clubs and Reunion Committees. Organized by Linda Carpenter, assistant director of alumni relations, the second VLTC was praised for its forward-looking vision.

"The VLTC is designed to train volunteers to manage large numbers of other volunteers, which is a very special skill—and to help make it easy for people to take that first step to volunteer for the College," Hille says. "We cannot force people to care about Juniata. We can only find volunteers, give them resources and support them. Our staff cannot reach into every potential community to recruit students or offer an internship opportunity, but our alumni volunteers can, and their enthusiastic response has been tremendous."

Hille explains how Juniata has benefited from volunteer enthusiasm by pointing out that the College's Uncommon Outcomes Campaign has raised nearly $80 million using approximately 3 percent overhead (which includes employee time and associated expenses), whereas the average overhead expenses for a capital campaign are between 12 to 17 percent. "The savings of more than $6 million made possible by volunteer service has resulted in more funds for scholarships, programs and capital projects," Hille says.

Corby also credits key volunteers who attended the first VLTC with providing the vision to map out where the College's volunteers should be utilized. By participating on the VLTC steering committee and within other volunteer groups, many volunteers were able to move projects forward or suggest planning initiatives that strengthened the College's educational mission.

Dan O'Sullivan '64, a retired lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army, had volunteered on his reunion committee and served on the Alumni Council when he volunteered to help with the first VLTC conference and served on the steering committee for the second conference. The former administrative and training officer has been instrumental in helping organize volunteer programs.

"People want to be a part of Juniata and they are seeing new ways to become involved, such as affinity groups," O'Sullivan says. "We do have to make sure we develop these programs in a timely manner. We have to make sure we are ready to use volunteers as they come forward in the areas they are interested in."

Amy Chamberlin '94, director of social services for the Community Action Commission in Harrisburg, became more involved with the College through her participation in the Central Pennsylvania Alumni Club. She had organized a Graduates of the Last Decade event for the club and was interested in keeping connected to the college. "I went to the first VLTC because I was becoming more involved and I wanted guidance on how to do this and to meet more alumni,"

she says. "I was really impressed by the agenda of the second conference and its focus on putting planning into action. The momentum they have built up will help keep the entire program going."

"Where Juniata is unique is in the number of areas we offer opportunities to volunteer," Corby says. "Most institutions have three or four volunteer areas such as career services, admissions or regional activities."

Michael Martin '77, a Pittsburgh-based financial investment consultant, saw the VLTC as an opportunity to find out what was happening at the College and, more importantly for him, as a conduit for working with the Juniata community.

"This program struck me as being very unique—lots of organizations out there work with volunteers, but I had never seen any organization trying to develop volunteers to assume fairly major responsibilities in the organization," Martin says. As a result, Martin has volunteered to help out with the Pittsburgh Regional Club and with Juniata Alumni Ambassadors in the Pittsburgh area. He also was impressed at how Web and media technology was used at the conference to provide training opportunities for other volunteers.

"The bottom line point to this effort is that alumni, perhaps more than any other group, are the best at selling the Juniata experience, but how do you get them focused at moving toward that goal?" he asks. "The volunteer program and the VLTC conferences are a very neat and effective way of doing that. It's a very powerful tool."

CHALLENGING THE STATUS QUO

Juniata's Alumni Council Volunteers Focus on the Future

"They're leaders and partners with us," Michelle Corby, director of alumni relations, says succinctly. "They let us know what alumni are going to do for the College and they advise us on the best way to establish connections to students, future students and families."

Corby is talking about one of the College's most intense, most enthusiastic and most resourceful volunteer groups, the Alumni Council. Comprised of 21 alumni nominated to the council as well as three student representatives and a faculty representative, the council's mission is simple—to keep alumni connected to the College and to help maintain and improve Juniata's educational excellence.

"I've observed alumni councils at a number of institutions and our Alumni Council is by far more proactive and energetic," says Tom Kepple, Juniata president. "The difference between Juniata's alumni council and other colleges is that they are taking responsibility to lead themselves. They actively seek out interesting things to do, and then do them. It's that simple."

Juniata's Alumni Council has been an active part of the College for decades, starting in the 1930s under the leadership of Harold B. Brumbaugh. Among the early traditions started by the council was Alumni Week in 1931, which eventually morphed into Alumni Weekend, and the establishment in 1936 of The Alumni Bulletin (renamed the Juniata Magazine in 1999). These two tools were the College's primary vehicles of communication with alumni.

The council historically played an advisory role, participating in meetings with College administrators and offering comments on developments and policies implemented by Juniata. The council still performs those duties at three meetings per year on campus: Family Weekend, a winter meeting and Alumni Weekend. However, the council's portfolio has vastly expanded as the group and alumni have embraced the concept of volunteering for Juniata.

The council's move toward more proactive programs began in the early 1990s under Alumni Council presidents Ron Seiler '77 (1996-97) and Jim Tufano '62 (1997-98), who started the Parent-Alumni Career Team (PACT) program.

"My question when I came on the Alumni Council in 1994 was 'What does the Alumni Council do?'" says Jodie Monger Gray '88, now an alumni Trustee and council president from 1998 to 1999. "The administration was very eager to have us involved, and had always been hopeful that alumni would become more involved."

Encouraged by the response of the administration under then-Juniata president Robert Neff, the council began reorganizing itself and its priorities. The group formed committees and organized an off-campus retreat to set priorities and goals.

In 1998, the council, under Gray's leadership, asked the College's alumni to find five hours per year to volunteer in some way for Juniata. "We felt that everybody is busy in their own careers, but that five hours a year was manageable," Gray recalls. "We also knew that if every person did a little bit, it would add up to a lot over time."

By 2000, under president Mark Miller '80, Gray's volunteer doctrine had become policy at the College, so much so that President Kepple encouraged the alumni relations office to apply to the Teagle Foundation for a grant to support volunteer leadership at the College. The College received the $250,000 grant in 2001, enabling the alumni relations office to expand its staff with a full-time administrative assistant and a part-time administrator, and providing financial resources for mailings and marketing.

Every year since 1996, the council has established new programs designed to make communications between alumni and the College more efficient. The Juniata College Alumni NewsGroup, founded by volunteer Jodie Monger Gray, sends news from the College out to more than 1,400 subscribers. The council started the College's winter Senior Dinner, where graduating seniors receive an initial contact from the Alumni Association, as well as the Faculty Reception on Alumni Weekend in June. Another event, the fall Legacy Reception, also uses input from the Alumni Council.

Other initiatives included a very effective mentor program, started by Michael Lehman '94, council president from 2000 to 2001, and the establishment of a Regional Outreach Committee.

"It was better defined and there was synergy between everybody involved," Gray says of the growth of the council's responsibilities. "It blossomed into this spectacular alumni association where everybody tries to add new pieces to the mission. All too often we are too busy to become part of the community where we live, but the Juniata community is there for all of us."

Corby credits Lehman with leading the council through the administration and development of the Teagle grant. He also asked the council to make a strategic plan and set its own objectives for each year. "When we sat down to compile our objectives the end results were very much on track with the Teagle grant," says Lehman, now completing a master's degree in business administration at the University of Leeds. "The most important thing about setting our goals was getting a structure in place that could be replicated year after year."

One of the council's most far-reaching objectives was the establishment of regional clubs in Pittsburgh, the Philadelphia area and the Baltimore-Washington, D.C. areas, as well as the establishment of a calendar of at least four events for each of the new clubs. Lehman says much of the council's activism can be traced to bringing in key individuals who saw specific ways to contribute to Juniata's mission.

He also says increased interest from relatively recent College alumni have helped to energize College initiatives.

Current president Ty Furman '90 sees no reason why the strides made by previous councils should not continue, despite the fact that the financial support provided by the Teagle grant will end in August 2003. "We look at ourselves like an umbrella, where key administration members and students are involved in every program and we have to identify the high-value programs and ensure that those programs are maintained," Furman says. "We have to evolve from volunteers to managers and make sure the infrastructure and tools are in place to succeed."

Furman says one of the council's priorities this year will be to find ways to incorporate parents into many of the College's volunteer programs. He also wants to increase the number of PACT volunteers and build on the College's regional alumni efforts.

"Alumni Council has become more focused and we're better at looking at the big picture," he says. "We've been able to identify where we will be the most valuable for Juniata and continue to work toward those goals."

"There is a sense of community when you come to Juniata that is integral to how the College functions," Corby explains. "Those values translate nicely into a tradition of volunteerism that has always been part of Juniata."

CONNECTIVITY

Alumni Always Find Creative Avenues to be Juni-active

One of the central reasons behind Juniata's success as an educational institution is the College's collective philosophy of allowing its students, faculty and employees to approach their goals—be it a medical school admission, tenure or a creating a new Web page—in a way that reflects not an impassive, faceless institutional policy, but rather a warm, personal approach sprinkled with individual style.

To be sure, the College has loads of official programs, most of them using alumni volunteers in creative ways. But what differentiates Juniata from many other colleges and universities is its willingness to allow alumni, faculty or staff to follow individual—and sometimes idiosyncratic—paths to remain connected to Juniata.

“We have found a number of ways to use one of the most proactive and enthusiastic alumni associations I’ve ever been associated with,” says Tom Kepple, Juniata president. “Our alumni office and various alumni groups have been very successful at channeling this enthusiasm into official programs, while taking care not to dilute original thinking and while allowing people to create their own ways of honoring their alma mater.”

Of course this philosophy relates directly to the College's central educational tenet—the Program of Emphasis. The POE provides the opportunity for students to decide for themselves much of what they will study. Juniata, realizing that students take education more seriously when they have an opportunity to mold their own course of study, believes that same individualism inspires its graduates to remain in contact and in many cases work diligently to maintain Juniata's pursuit of excellence.

Many alumni choose to maintain ties to the College by sponsoring internships for current

Juniata students. According to Darwin Kysor, director of career services, many alumni participate in the College's official internship programs, but a significant number also offer students internships through departments or on an individual basis. For example, Gregory Stahl '84, associate professor in the department of anesthesiology, perioperative and pain medicine at Brigham and Women's Hospital at Harvard Medical School, hires a Juniata student intern every summer. Peter Marzio '65, executive director of the Houston Museum of Fine Arts, provided a summer internship for Erin Pohronezni '02 by working directly with the College's art history department. College Trustees also readily volunteer to host interns. For example, Mary White '73, president and chief executive officer of Swedish Medical Center in Denver, Colo., has hosted Kenzie Leung '01, an international student from Hong Kong, and Abby White '04, a junior from Indiana, Pa., as summer interns. Former Trustee Charles Brown Jr. '59, president judge in the Centre County Court of Common Pleas, also has offered many internships to Juniata students. Ron Blanck '63, president of the University of North Texas Medical School also sponsors summer interns.

"We have about 225 students working in internships throughout the year," Kysor estimates. "We also can have 25 to 50 students working in internships they have arranged through alumni, faculty or personal connections as well."

Kysor says the number of students completing internships has risen dramatically since 1996. In 1996, 60 students completed summer internships. This year 140 students worked as interns. For-credit internships that students complete during the academic year also have increased. In 2000, 65 percent of Juniata students completed a for-credit internship. By 2001, that figure had increased to 70 percent.

Kysor also credits the Parent-Alumni Career Team program with creating another way for alumni to volunteer for the College. The career services office has more than 500 alumni in its database and allows each alumnus or alumna to create opportunities for current students in their own way, which can include acting as a mentor or establishing an internship. For Darwin Kysor, director of career services, helps find internships for hundreds of Juniata students a year.

"Why I volunteer..."

"I have many fond memories—from visiting my sisters on campus in the '70s, to meeting my husband there as a freshman, and graduating in '82. When asked to assume the duty of class fund agent for the Class of '82, Eric and I readily agreed. The people of Juniata became a part of our extended family and remain so today."

— Karen Biddle '82

Jodie Monger Groy '88 is the driving force behind the Juniata College NewsGroup, which keeps more than 1,400 alumni up-to-date on College events. She is starting another alumni news group focusing on business.

example, Eric Kofmehl, the father of Scott Kofmehl '03, a senior from Pittsburgh, has helped students find internships in the Pittsburgh area.

“One of the benefits of working with alumni and parents is that they have a commitment to Juniata that other employers don’t,” Kysor explains. “They have a personal interest in having the intern do well.”

Personal interest in Juniata and personal communication style also has been a hallmark of the College’s class fund agent program for The Juniata Fund. Marsha Hartman '70, director of The Juniata Fund, says the success of the program and the College’s uncommonly high participation rate is directly related to giving each agent free rein to communicate with classmates in a style that makes them feel most comfortable.

“The whole point of having class fund agents is to allow classmates to use their own perspective to engage people in the process of helping Juniata,” she says. “If we just wanted to deliver the College mantra, we could send out a letter ourselves.”

Hartman says many class fund agents use unique approaches to increase participation in the Juniata Fund. Jeffrey Fetterman '91, uses e-mail, while Eric and Karen Biddle '82, do their class fund agent-work as a couple. Several agents use unique letter-writing methods. William Carpenter '52, writes his letter in the form of an acronym spelling out JUNIATA. Here’s a sample:

Joining the alumni faithful
Uplifting the academic programs
Narrowing the financial restraints ...and so on.

Hartman says humor always is an effective tool to create participation. Bruce Davis '65, executive director of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, usually makes his letter hilariously memorable. An excerpt:

“There will be phone calls. The first call will be from some polite little sophomore from the College. A gentle nudge for the absent minded. The second call—and it’s hard to conceive of anyone needing a second call—will be from one of our own class members. I haven’t decided who yet, but I’m looking for someone with a rough tongue and a twisted genius for gossip. You don’t want to know about the third phone call. All I can report here is that the caller will be quite, quite large and will be phoning from very near your house.”

Although the Juniata College Alumni NewsGroup is less humorous than Davis’ letters, the service excels at its mission—keeping alumni in tune with events in and around Juniata. Started in 1996 by Trustee Jodie Monger Gray ‘88, the group has more than 1,400 subscribers. Delivered weekly during the school year, the NewsGroup distributes College news releases and sports news, as well as announcements from the alumni relations office.

“It has not only been a great tool to keep people connected to the College but it has become a great forum for ideas,” Gray says. Those who would like to join the NewsGroup can send an e-mail to: drgray@erols.com or sign up at www.juniata.edu. Gray also hopes to start another news group focused on alumni who are pursuing business careers.

Gray’s effort to spin off a successful enterprise into another incarnation is mirrored in the success of the College’s regional clubs. “Not everyone can get back to Juniata, so we decided we would take Juniata to them,” says Michelle Corby, director of alumni relations.

Using the long-established Central Pennsylvania Alumni Club as a model, regional clubs have been started in Pittsburgh, the Delaware Valley (Philadelphia-area), the Washington, D.C. area and in Blair-Bedford counties. For the past years, the alumni office also has created regional get-togethers and events across the county at the rate of one a month. Locales have included southern California, Atlanta, Boston, Houston and Chicago.

The International Alumni Club also is spinning off new efforts. In addition to their annual reunion held in May, the totally volunteer-led group is exploring how to better use the NewsGroup to remain connected. Corby also reports the group is developing a Web site to make communication even easier.

“All volunteer efforts have the same aim,” Corby says. “We work to keep the Juniata spirit alive and to celebrate the common bonds we share.”

A group of Juniata alumni socialize at Hillenbruck Farm in rural Moryland. The farm, owned by Trustee Aliceann Wohlbruck ‘58 and her husband, Bernard Hillenbrand, was the site of a regional club get-together, the JC-DC Club Picnic.

ENROLLMENT TRENDS

JUNIATA INSIDE THE INSIDER'S GUIDES

Juniata College became one of 320 colleges nationwide to be included in the Unofficial Insider's Guide to the 320 Most Interesting Colleges, published by Kaplan Publishing. The guide, written by Trent Anderson and Seppy Basili, states Juniata is "an excellent choice for students interested in the health sciences who want a great deal of individual attention." The guide goes on to single out Juniata's Information Technology program and the college's Environmental Science and Studies program, noting that "research opportunities are available in virtually every discipline." Juniata also is listed in the 2003 edition of The Princeton Review: The Best 345 Colleges. Each year, The Princeton Review surveys thousands of college students to get the inside word about what's going on at the nation's top colleges. Barron's Best Buys in College Education includes Juniata largely because of its POE system, its peace and conflict studies program, and campus activities, stating "From the Program of Emphasis, in which students design their own curricula, to the on-campus weekends, in which they design their own fun, Juniata is a place for the independent scholar at any level." Peterson's Competitive Colleges and Miriam Weinstein's Making a Difference College Guide: Outstanding Colleges To Help You Make a Better World also include glowing recommendations for a Juniata education.

"Why I volunteer..."

"I believe that my time at Juniata really shaped quite a bit of the adult I have become. I went to Juniata as a teenager, full of the impressions that my friends held in high school. I left college with new abilities to look at and analyze my world as a thinking, global citizen."

— Tracy Grojewski '86, Closs Fund Agent volunteer

BRANDY WORKINGER '02

As one of Juniata's most celebrated athletes, former Eagles volleyball player Brandy Workinger prizes the satisfaction and elation that comes from being part of a smoothly operating team. Which is why she recently decided to forego a career in corporate accounting to accept a job as assistant controller at Heritage Hills Golf Resort and Conference Center, a prestigious resort in her hometown, York, Pa.

"In this position I will have more responsibility and it fits my interests," says the two-time Division III All-American. "There's more of an opportunity for growth and I like the way everybody works as a team."

Brandy had received a job offer from a major accounting firm, Price Waterhouse Coopers in the same Harrisburg office where she worked during a senior-year internship. She started at Heritage Hills in May, thinking it would be a great summer job, and soon realized she would gain a wealth of experience if she stayed right where she was. "There are perks, this summer I've been golfing a lot," she says, laughing.

Like many graduates in a first job, Brandy would like to get a few years experience before thinking about her next move. She believes graduate school is a major part of her career plan, a decision made easier by the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship she received while at Juniata. The scholarship, awarded annually to 174 senior student athletes, gives her $5,000 toward any graduate program she chooses.

"If I decide not to get a master's in finance or accounting, I'll probably go to law school," she says.

GUIDE: JUNIATA CHANGES LIVES

Colleges That Change Lives, written by Loren Pope, is a guide to colleges which offers a lifetime guarantee that “Any one of the 40 colleges profiled here will do at least as much as, and usually far more than, an Ivy League school, an Ivy clone or a major research university to give you a rich, full life, and to make you a winner.”

“It has a powerhouse sense of mission,” writes Pope, “It has a powerhouse faculty trained at the top universities. The combination produces dramatic results...” The guide also quotes Juniata faculty, administrators and students on their views of the college. The guide praises the college’s international programs and its track record for educating women, particularly women in the sciences, and hiring women as faculty. The guide offers the most extensive portrait of Juniata College and its educational mission.

COLLEGE MOVES UP IN U.S. NEWS RANKINGS

U.S. News & World Report rated Juniata College in the second tier (among the top 114 institutions) of its 2002 rankings of the best liberal arts college in the nation, according to the publication “America’s Best Colleges.” There are 218 liberal arts colleges, comprising four tiers, which fall under the new guidelines. Juniata is one of 13 liberal arts colleges in Pennsylvania to be ranked in the top two tiers nationally.

"Why I volunteer..."

"Lifelong friendships with my professors and new friendships with more recent faculty formed through my lifelong contact with Juniata make our alma mater stand out among any other college or university. Seeing two of my children graduate from Juniata with the same intense loyalty that I have had the past 35 years makes me think that I've done the right thing in selecting my priorities for focusing my volunteer activity at the 'College on the Hill.'"

— Terry Fabian '67, Class Fund Agent volunteer

Ty Furman '90

It's not as if Ty Furman, a 2002 Alumni Volunteer Recognition Award winner (Parent-Alumni Career Team), needs any more to do. He has a full-time job as coordinator of student performing arts at the University of Pennsylvania and devotes long hours to his duties as president of the Alumni Council. But he feels volunteering for Juniata's Parent-Alumni Career Team is an important part of his commitment to the College.

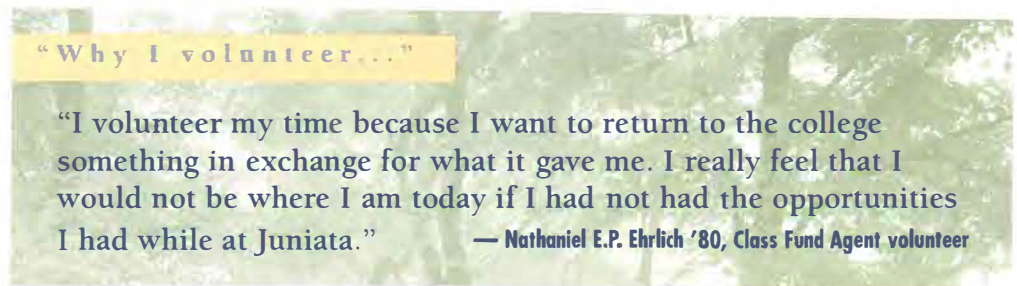

"There aren't many Juniatians who chose careers in the arts, and I thought I had a fairly unique career path that could be of help to students," Ty says. "Also, I work with college students every day and I have a real sense of the impact helpful alumni can have."

In the first year of the new Alumni Council volunteer mentoring program, Ty corresponded with two students: Grace McCloskey '05, a sophomore from Elliptsburg, Pa.; and Chris Heaster '05, a sophomore from Mount Union, Pa. He also met personally with both students during Homecoming Weekend. Also during Homecoming, Ty teamed with another PACT volunteer Christie Brown '92 in mock interviews and resume review sessions with psychology students facing interviews for graduate school or the workplace. "It went very well," he says of the interviews. "We felt as though we were really helpful."

Ty is planning to act as mentor for more students in the incoming freshman class this year. "It's designed to be very low-key," he says of his volunteer work. "A lot of it is just being available to point to a source or a connection. Ultimately, I love Juniata. My experience there changed my life and I'm more than happy to help others have that same experience."

TERRI TRAVERS '02

Terri Travers came to Juniata to get a great education and to play guard on the women's basketball team. After her freshman year, however, she found she didn't enjoy playing the game as she did in high school. Rather than leave the team, she decided to serve as student assistant coach and co-captain, an athletic career change that led to her being awarded the Sears Directors Cup Postgraduate Scholarship.

The scholarship, awarded by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics for service and academic achievement, provides $5,000 that can be applied to any graduate school the student chooses. Terri was one of four Division III students nationally to receive the award.

"Not playing was very different for me, but I think I brought a critical eye to the team," she says. "I think I could relate well to where the coaches were coming from and where the team was coming from."

The switch from playing to coaching didn't gain her any free time. If anything, coaching required even more of a time commitment. She believes her psychology POE helped her adapt to her role. "It helped me see how people work together and how different situations can have repercussions beyond what you expect."

Two repercussions from Terri's coaching experience have had a great outcome. She will start graduate school at George Washington University in the fall, studying organizational sciences, and she plans to continue coaching.

"I'd eventually like to go into a business situation after graduate school," she says. "Eventually, I'd like to coach women's high school basketball. I wouldn't be happy without coaching."

Bequests

Bequests are crucial in helping Juniata maintain its respected position in higher education circles. Bequests work particularly well for those who are unable to make an immediate outright gift but would like to express their devotion for Juniata and provide for its future. Through the generous inclusion of Juniata in one's will, a major step is taken in ensuring the long-term financial integrity of the College.

Bequests were received from the estates of the following persons:

M. Bertha Brower '22
Matilda S. Clemens '41
C. Galen Detwiler
Zella Gahagen Charitable Trust
George C. Griffith '21
Paul E. Hickes '42
Lela Nelson Hollinger '39
Lorine D. Hyer '24

Charitable Gift Annuities

A charitable gift annuity is a gift that provides donors with guaranteed and attractive retirement income with no investment worries or responsibilities. It is a wonderful way to make a special and enduring gift that will strengthen Juniata when the remainder becomes available for our needs.

The following individuals made gifts for charitable gift annuities between July 1, 2001 and June 30, 2002:

Beulah K. Baugher
Kenneth L. Berry '35
Catherine Smith Bramble '34
Thomas E. Bramble '34

Doris Caldwell Rhoades '40
J. Benton Rhoades
Marie Shollenberger
Michael Tyson '63
Lewis D. Wetzel

Pooled Income Fund

A gift to Juniata's pooled income fund can avoid the capital gain tax which would otherwise be due upon the sale of property such as securities. The donor receives shares in the pooled income fund and the net income earned is distributed quarterly based upon each donor's portion of the fund.

The following individuals made gifts to the pooled income funds between July 1, 2001 and June 30, 2002:

Helen Stutzman Hollinger '54
Richard W. Hollinger '53
Hilda Horner McCreight '41

HERITAGE SOCIETY

The Juniata College Heritage Society includes those persons who have indicated that the College is included in their estate plans. In addition, persons who have entered into life income gift plans with the College belong to the Society. Some persons prefer that they remain anonymous; yet still belong to the Heritage Society.

BILL '57 AND HELEN ADAMS '57

On the surface, attending your class reunion is an easy assignment—just show up with a camera and a yearbook and everything's set. Not quite true. Each Juniata class that returns to campus puts together a volunteer committee tasked with organizing activities during Alumni Weekend.

Helen and Bill Adams, both recipients of the 2002 Alumni Volunteer Recognition Award (Reunion Committee), know that all too well. They took a leadership role in organizing their class reunion this summer for two reasons. First, they had organized a reunion several times before, and second, the couple really enjoys getting all the inside College information about activities first and disseminating it to their classmates.

"We didn't do this for our last reunion, but we've done this a number of years in the past and Bill and I just feel it's great fun to get all the information before everybody else gets it," Helen says.

Helen and Bill took a team approach to their task, asking volunteers among their classmates to take charge of duties such as putting together a trivia quiz, screening movies from their college years and many other assignments. "We tried to make sure everybody who wanted an assignment had something to do," Helen explains.

In addition, Helen designed the class questionnaire the couple used to gather information. Bill wrote and edited the class newsletter. "I think we have more fun every year we come back," she says. "There seems to be core group that returns for every reunion and we find that tremendously uplifting."

KATIE BAVER '04

Have you ever had one of those dreams where you're at a dinner party and someone asks you an excruciatingly difficult current events question just as you're about to eat the salad course? Well, Katie Baver, a junior from Fleetwood, Pa., had to face that situation for real as part of her interview process for the St. Andrews Society of Philadelphia Andrew Mutch Scholarship. Luckily, Katie's impromptu quiz on whether drug companies should lower prescription drug prices for lower-income families did not faze her. She started classes at the University of Edinboro in September.

"I have no memory of what I said to answer," Katie says, laughing. "But I'm really excited about getting the chance to see a different culture and interact with students and faculty to see how European scientists approach their research."

Katie, who is pursuing a biochemistry POE, spent the summer studying gene expression at a research lab at the University of Rochester, but will dedicate her year in Scotland to the humanities by taking two art classes and just one science class.

Taking a year abroad means Katie will miss a season of competition as a field hockey athlete and the opening of the William J. von Liebig Center for Science, but she knows that international experience will help her achieve her career goal to attend graduate school in biotechnology. "I am definitely excited about the new building, but I'm glad I'm going to miss the moving process," she says.

BRIEFLY: LEGAL 'EAGLES' EXCEL

Juniata sends an average of eight students a year into law schools across the nation. These are joined by more than 10 alumni every year. Perhaps the most telling statistic for the excellence of Juniata's pre-law program is that every Juniata student who has graduated law school since Jack Barlow, professor of politics, started tracking its graduates has passed the bar exam on the first try.

"Why I volunteer..."

"Juniata was an ideal college placement for me. It encouraged and challenged me as a student, and now I volunteer as a means to returning to the College what it has given me."

— Rich Smith '70, Class Fund Agent volunteer

JANET CLAYCOMB BATDORF '55

Janet Claycomb Batdorf is an experienced hand at volunteering for Juniata. After all, she's been volunteering as a Class Fund Agent for more than 40 years. To Janet, one of the 2002 Alumni Volunteer Recognition Award (Class Fund Agent) recipients, volunteering boils down to a simple formula—stay in touch with people.

"For me, the pleasure of working as a class fund agent is never about fund raising, it's always about staying in contact with people," Janet says. "People have always been very important to me and I love keeping track of them."

Janet, a retired elementary school teacher, also makes time to volunteer as secretary-treasurer of the Central Pennsylvania Alumni Club, where she keeps track of events and other alumni volunteers from Lancaster, Harrisburg and York.

Janet considers class fund agents as the earliest volunteers for Juniata, noting that the College needs even more volunteers for class fund agents. "I think I've been successful because my class was small," she explains. "So many people have so many commitments for their time, but volunteering is very important because the College could never possibly afford to keep in contact with its graduates any other way."

Janet, whose work as a class fund agent resulted in an 80-plus percent participation rate for the Class of 1955, emphasizes that it is volunteers that help make the College such a friendly and welcoming place. "It's a wonderful way to keep in touch," she says.

"Why I volunteer..."

"I am the daughter of two Juniata grads and grew up helping my father seal and stamp the letters for his class, as he was a class fund agent as well. I had always wanted to 'follow in his footsteps' and I truly enjoy the job—now even more as he has passed away and this is a nice remembrance of good times past for me."

NICOLE SMEAL '02

Nicole Smeal's career path has never wavered—from her freshman year when she declared her POE as international business to her upcoming educational internship experience in Germany, made possible by her selection for the Congress-Bundestag Exchange for Young Professionals.

Nicole is the first Juniata student to be selected for the prestigious exchange program in which graduating college students spend a year in Germany studying and working at internships for German businesses. She will spend two months in an intensive language program at a university in northern Germany and then work for five to six months at a German corporation or business.

"I am really interested in marketing and seeing how to market products in cultures different from the United States," says the Clearfield, Pa. native. "I'm definitely focusing on Germany right now, but in the long run I'd like to work in other (European) countries."

Encouraged by Klaus Jaeger, professor of German, and Jarmila Polte, director of study abroad, Nicole combined German into her POE and spent her junior year at Fachhochschule Muenster, moves that opened Nicole's eyes to opportunities beyond Pennsylvania. "My year abroad gave me a cultural perspective I hadn't seen before," she says. "My best friends at Muenster were from Colombia and Japan."

As she gets ready for the German business experience, Nicole reflects on Juniata's culture of student-faculty collaboration, relationships that led directly to her exchange opportunity. "The one-on-one interaction between student and faculty allowed Klaus to feel comfortable about telling me about the program and pushing me to apply for the opportunity."

"Why I volunteer..."

"I volunteer time to Juniata because it is one of the best ways that I know of to give back to the school that provided me with the opportunity to pursue my career goals. I developed numerous friendships with other students and professors at Juniata, and again because of the experience I was provided and the career directions that I pursued, I find it important to remain connected to Juniata in order to help out in anyway and to give back to the school. — Richard Howey '86, Juniata Admissions Ambassador volunteer

JESSICA YUTZEY '00

Finding the right person to take responsibility for the smooth operation of a group can be difficult, but the Juniata Education Affinity Group knew they had the right person in Jessica Yutzey. Now working as a kindergarten teacher at Juniata Valley Elementary School in Alexandria, Pa., Jessica, honored as a 2002 Alumni Volunteer Recognition Award (Affinity Group) winner, knew that her close proximity to Huntingdon would make it easier for her to volunteer her services to the College.

She joined the Education Affinity Group last year. As one of the chairs, she was involved in writing the group charter and is currently working to contact education alumni to build a database of people interested in joining the group.

"Having just started last year, we're really just beginning the process of recruiting people," Jessica says. "It's been very interesting to see what careers people have gone into aside from teaching." So far, Jessica has been able to recruit about 25 alumni to participate in the affinity group.

In addition to Jessica's efforts, the group hopes to start a program for Juniata education students interested in observing alumni who are currently teaching in the area. Jessica also says the group has talked about building a video library of taped lessons from alumni teachers across the country.

"One of the things that made volunteering important to me was my own experience seeing how alumni had a positive impact on campus and how they contributed to the students' experience in college," she says. "I really wanted to stay part of the Juniata family."

CATHLEEN HEWLETT '03

Not many undergraduate students are offered the opportunity to do brain surgery, but Cathleen Hewlett, a senior from Pittsburgh studying biology, is as adept with a scalpel as she is with her other College studies. OK, the brain surgery Cathleen performs is on honeybees—all part of a larger research project overseen by Jay Hosler, assistant professor of biology.

Cathleen worked in Hosler's lab this summer as a von Liebig summer research assistant. She was researching how the olfactory pathways in a honeybee's brain recognize odors and how that learning is affected when the bee can no longer recognize the odor.

"The olfactory area in a bee's brain secretes histamine, which plays a role in the bee's recognizing certain odors," she explains. "When I operate on the bees, I remove part of their skull and treat the brain with a histamine blocker to see how that affects learning."

Last year, Cathleen's proposal to study the neurological pathways of learning using honeybees earned her a prestigious Goldwater Scholarship, one of 375 awarded nationally to undergraduate students in science, math and engineering. Cathleen's scholarship was the first Goldwater award received by a Juniata student since 1998. Cathleen will apply the $7,500 award to her senior year tuition and expenses. She also is a member of Tri Beta, the biological honor society and the College Honor Society.

"I'd like to get a doctorate in some area of neurobiology, so the research I'm doing is great training for graduate school," Cathleen says.

EVERYBODY PITCHES IN

Juniata's faculty and staff are fully engaged in contributing to the College's financial foundation. According to Marsha Frye Hartman '70, director of The Juniata Fund, the College received 100 percent participation from faculty, administration and staff, as well as from Juniata's Board of Trustees and from the Alumni Council.

TOP TEACHER TESTERS

Students in the teacher preparation program at Juniata College scored well above the Pennsylvania state average in all areas of the teacher education certification tests and the college's education department as a whole was rated in the top 25 percent of higher education programs across the state, according to the Educational Testing Service (ETS), which administers and scores the test.

Juniata's education program placed in the top 25 percent of all teacher preparation programs in Pennsylvania as a summarization of how all Juniata students have done on the ETS exams.

JEROME DVORAK '87

There is no better person to sing the praises of attending Juniata than an enthusiastic alumnus who can testify first-hand about the College's attributes. Jerome Dvorak, president of Anthracite Financial Group, a financial management firm based in McAdoo, Pa., is perfectly suited to the job of convincing students to attend Juniata.

After all, Jerome, who received the 2002 Alumni Volunteer Recognition Award (Juniata Admissions Ambassador), has convinced 118 Juniata Admissions Ambassadors (JAA), to meet his goal of getting 100 student applications and 100 percent participation from all his volunteers.

In just over a year, Jerome and other volunteers have organized the JAA volunteers into six regional teams covering Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and the District of Columbia. Each volunteer is expected to participate in activities such as representing Juniata at a College Night, recruiting local high school students or hosting a recruitment event. In addition, Jerome and two other volunteers, Jessica and Todd Cammarata of Blair County, collaborated on a multimedia training manual for JAA participants.

"To be able to help a high school student receive the same opportunities as I had is very important to me," he says. "I've been very pleased by the response," he says. "When you ask a Juniata alumnus to do anything, they always do whatever they can to accomplish the task."

NATIONAL SURVEY LAUDS JUNIATA

The 2000 National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE) singled out Juniata College for praise for its writing-intensive curriculum and for its supportive campus environment. The survey, which annually polls freshmen and seniors at 276 colleges and universities nationwide, revealed that Juniata's seniors rated the College higher than its peer institutions in four out of the survey's five categories: Level of Academic Challenge; Active and Collaborative Learning; Student Interaction; and Supportive Campus Environment. "What this underlined for Juniata is that this is a challenging but supportive place, and that is what makes us unique," says James Lakso, Juniata provost.

"Why I volunteer..."

"The friends I made while at JC are the most lasting in my lifetime. We can be out of contact for years, but when we see each other, the years melt away and we are kids on campus again. There are not too many relationships one has in life that are that close and these friends and memories should be cherished. My daughter, Allison, is starting her sophomore year this fall and, it has become obvious that she is also forming lifetime relationships. It is a very different time with very different attitudes, problems, and stresses, but the basic nurturing atmosphere that Juniata provides still goes on. I have really been impressed with the intelligent, enthusiastic, and caring attitudes that are so obvious when talking to any of the administration."

"Why I volunteer."

"I volunteer for Juniata because I hope it will help students receive the same life-enhancing benefits I received there decades ago. It's fun to stay connected with my generation of classmates and gratifying to see continuing on campus today dedicated faculty, staff and students engaged in visionary, challenging, and focused efforts that truly make positive differences in many lives."
